Not Bound by Realism

January 9 - March 12, 2007

Described as “hip” in Star magazine, Michael Abraham’s personal coups have included four sold out shows and shining reviews in the Vancouver Sun. He was selected to showcase “Canada’s artistic genius, representing the best of the contemporary scene” at the Asia Pacific Economic Conference (Apec’97). Abraham has been interviewed by the CBC and Vancouver Television. His paintings have been on three Common Ground magazine covers and Vancouver Symphony’s Allegro, as well as glimpsed at in InStyle magazine. Abraham's original oil paintings are in collections from London to Singapore, from Philadelphia to Amsterdam. With work in the Vancouver Art Gallery, and various corporate, public and private collections, two of his paintings are in the collection of Courtney Cox and David Arquette.

Born in Montreal in 1965, he began his studies in life drawing and compositional painting at the Ontario College of Art (1984-88). He was teacher’s assistant during a year of postgraduate education in Florence, Italy (1990-91). Michael has been painting full time since 1992. He travels to see art often, and enjoys music, food and nature and a happy family life. He currently lives and creates in Delta, British Columbia.
